

University  of Pannonia
HUNGARY

GEORGIKON FACULTY
Keszthely

MSc Degree Program
in Agriculture

Founded in 1797

OBJECTIVES

The Master's degree program at the Georgikon Faculty offers an advanced level and up-to-date education at each areas of agricultural production. This provides a stable background for the further improvement of their knowledge to meet the requirements of any professional field within the European Union or in international relations.

Our agricultural MSc degree program provides professional preparation for the students to enable them the synthesized use of natural, agricultural, technical and economic knowledge, directing the technology, business and labour organization of agricultural production, as well as the management of applications.

WHO CAN BE A SUCCESSFUL APPLICANT?

Mostly students with educational background in agriculture but also those having other basic qualifications and going to be involved in various areas of agri-business: crop production (including sustainable landscape management, seeding technologies, nutrient management, fertilizer application etc.), animal sciences (animal nutrition and breeding), as well as economic and social sciences, such as marketing and economics of farm enterprises.

ADMISSION REQUIREMENTS

Students must have a minimum of 60 credits of basic courses in natural, technical and social sciences as well as specialized courses including crop, animal and economic sciences.

Leader of the programme:
Prof. Katalin Sárdi
professor, PhD
Phone: +36-83-545-295, e-mail: sardi@georgikon.hu

Duration of the program : 4 semesters

ADDITIONAL INFORMATION

University of Pannonia, Georgikon Faculty,
Keszthely, HUNGARY
Group of Education and Accreditation
H-8360 Keszthely, 16 Deák Ferenc st.
Phone: +36 83 545 190 • Fax: +36 83 510 167
E-mail: oak@georgikon.hu